

Lawn Boy Returns

One day I was 12 years old and broke. Then Grandma gave me Grandpa's old riding lawnmower. I set out to mow some lawns. More people wanted me to mow their lawns. And more and more. . . . One client was Arnold the stockbroker, who offered to teach me about "the beauty of capitalism. Supply and Demand. Diversify labor. Distribute the wealth." "Wealth?" I said. "It's groovy, man," said Arnold. If I'd known what was coming, I might have climbed on my mower and putted all the way home to hide in my room. But the lawn business grew and grew. So did my profits, which Arnold invested in many things. And one of them was Joey Pow the prizefighter. That's when my 12th summer got really interesting.

Guess what -- Gary Paulsen was being kind to Brian. In Guts, Gary tells the real stories behind the Brian books, the stories of the adventures that inspired him to write Brian Robeson's story: working as an emergency volunteer; the death that inspired the pilot's death in Hatchet; plane crashes he has seen and near-misses of his own. He describes how he made his own bows and arrows, and takes readers on his first hunting trips, showing the wonder and solace of nature along with his hilarious mishaps and mistakes. He shares special memories, such as the night he attracted every mosquito in the county, or how he met the moose with a sense of humor, and the moose who made it personal. There's a handy chapter on "Eating Eyeballs and Guts or Starving: The Fine Art of Wilderness Nutrition." Recipes included. Readers may wonder how Gary Paulsen survived to write all of his books -- well, it took guts.

In Monsterlijke mythes worden oude legendes verteld, variërend van klassieke mythologie tot een Keltisch verhaal tot een verhaal van de Incas. Anthony Horowitz hield altijd al van mythes en legendes, maar vond de verhalen vroeger wel een beetje saai beschreven. Ze bevatten niet genoeg humor en niet genoeg bloed. Het leek een beetje op rondlopen in een museum, kijkend naar stoffige relikwieën achter glas met overall bordjes NIET AANRAKEN. Horowitz vertelt in Monsterlijke mythes de bekende en minder bekende legendes zó spannend, dat ze ook voor de jeugd tot leven komen. Lees nu de bloedspannende versies van onder andere Het raadsel van de Sfinx (Oude Grieken), Romulus en Remus (Romeinen), Geriguiaguiatugo (Bororo Indianen), Het gespikkelde ei (Cheyenne Indianen) en De wasvrouw (Kelten).

Another such wave could easily be the end of us. I had to do something, fix something, save the boat, save myself. But what? Gary Paulsen takes readers along on his maiden voyage, proving that ignorance can be bliss. Also really stupid and incredibly dangerous. He tells of boats that have owned him—good, bad, and beloved—and how they got him through terrifying storms that he survived by sheer luck. His spare prose conjures up shark surprises and killer waves as well as moonlight on the sea, and makes readers feel what it's like to sail under the stars or to lie at anchor in a tropical lagoon where dolphins leap, bathed in silver. Falling in love with the ocean set Gary Paulsen on a lifelong learning curve and readers will understand why his passion has lasted to this day.
