In a world gone mad with standardized curricula and the degradation of the profession of teaching, P. L. Thomas and Joe Kincheloe attempt to bring sanity back to the discussion of the teaching of some of the basic features of the educational process. In Reading, Writing, and Thinking: The Postformal Basics the authors take on the “rational irrationality” of current imperial pedagogical practices, providing readers with provocative insights into the bizarre assumptions surrounding the contemporary teaching of reading, writing, and thinking.

Als Olivia een nieuwe liefde ontmoet, de bioloog Francis, net op het moment dat haar beste vriendin Lucy terugkeert uit New York, wordt haar serieuze academische bestaan opgevrolijkt. Haar band met Francis is al meteen verrassend intiem. Olivia wil haar nieuwe levensgeluk dolgraag delen met Lucy, maar Lucy heeft zelf nieuws dat het drietal heel dicht bij elkaar zal brengen. In de maanden die volgen zullen ook Olivia's ouders, beiden psychoanalyticus, Lucy's baas Hunter en een jonge buitenstaander, Sebastian, nauw betrokken raken bij deze vriendenkring. In zijn grote nieuwe roman Dubbelblind behandelt Edward St Aubyn thema's als erfelijkheid, vrijheid en de verhalen die we over onszelf vertellen. Hij schrijft overtuigend over ecologie, psychoanalyse, genetica en neurowetenschap, maar ook, en misschien nog wel meer, over liefde, angst en moed. Met zijn kenmerkende vlijmscherpe en geestige observaties schetst St Aubyn een meeslepende wereld waarin intelligentie en nieuwsgierigheid, hebzucht en menselijkheid om voorrang strijden. Edward St Aubyn (1960) is een van de grootste Britse schrijvers van onze tijd. Zijn bekendste werk is de vijfdelige romanserie over de familie Melrose, waarvan het vierde deel, Moedermelk, in 2006 werd genomineerd voor de Booker Prize. In 2018 werd de reeks verfilmd als Patrick Melrose, met Benedict Cumberbatch in de hoofdrol. De serie kreeg twee BAFTA Awards. ‘Dubbelblind is in emotionele zin overtuigend en in intellectuele zin fascinerend. De bespiegelingen en dialogen begeven zich op het raakvlak van wetenschap en de nijpende kwesties die de mensheid momenteel in hun greep houden. Ik kon het niet wegleggen.’ Ian McEwan ‘Dubbelblind is een grote ideeënroman, waarin de personages experimenteren met medische wetenschap, psychologie, verdovende middelen, religie en meditatie – dit alles om zelfinzicht te verwerven en rust te vinden. Maar al is deze roman nog zo cerebraal, hij is ook diep doorvoeld, aangezien St Aubyn al decennia over deze onderwerpen nadenkt.’ The Guardian ‘Dit is een roman met een ziel. Dubbelblind is zowel intelligent als diep menselijk en St Aubyn bewijst eens te meer dat hij een van de meest inspirerende schrijvers is binnen de hedendaagse Engelse literatuur.’ The Spectator ‘Dit is een eersteklas ideeënroman, die niet alleen vermakelijk is, maar ook tot denken aanzet, om nog maar te zwijgen van het genot dat hij op zinsniveau biedt.’ Daily Mail

A reading comprehension program based on critical thinking. For grades 1-6. Although the Common Core and C3 Framework highlight literacy and inquiry as central goals for social studies, they do not offer guidelines, assessments, or curriculum resources. This practical guide presents six research-tested historical investigations along with all corresponding teaching materials and tools that have improved the historical thinking and argumentative writing of academically diverse students. Each investigation integrates reading, analysis, planning, composing, and reflection into a writing process that results in an argumentative history essay. Primary sources have been modified to allow struggling readers access to the material. Web links to original unmodified primary sources are also provided, along with other sources to extend investigations. The authors include sample student essays from each investigation to illustrate the progress of two different learners and explain how to support students' development. Each chapter includes these helpful sections: Historical Background, Literacy Practices Students Will Learn, How to Teach This Investigation, How Might Students Respond?, Student Writing and Teacher Feedback, Lesson Plans and Materials. Book Features: Integrates literacy and inquiry with core U.S. history topics. Emphasizes argumentative writing, a key requirement of the Common Core. Offers explicit guidance for instruction with classroom-ready materials. Provides primary sources for differentiated instruction. Explains a curriculum appropriate for students who struggle with reading, as well as more advanced readers. Models how to transition over time from more explicit instruction to teacher coaching and greater student independence. "The tools this book provides—from graphic organizers, to lesson plans, to the accompanying documents—demystify the writing process and offer a sequenced path toward attaining proficiency." —From the Foreword by Sam Wineburg, co-author of Reading Like a Historian "Assuming literate practice to be at the core of history learning and historical practice, the authors provide actual units of history instruction that can be immediately applied to classroom teaching. These units make visible how a cognitive apprenticeship approach enhances history and historical literacy learning and ensure a supported transition to teaching history in accordance with Common Core State Standards." —Elizabeth Moje, Arthur F. Learning to Read and Think provides students with the in-depth lessons and reinforcement activities they need to become critical readers and thinkers. Eight major higher-level reading and thinking skills are introduced at the appropriate levels and reinforced and developed at subsequent levels. The skills taught in Learning to Read and Think are those most frequently identified in literature and basal programs, and in statewide assessment and achievement tests. Each major skills unit is followed by a Unit Review, which provides students with a means of self-evaluation and teachers with an ongoing assessment of the student's level of mastery. A separate Teacher's Guide for each level provides background information, discussion starters, and extension activities, plus answers for all the exercises.

Reading is a social act. We all love to talk about what we read, whether sharing the latest novel with a friend, reacting to an outrageous editorial with a colleague, or exploring a picture book with a child. Kids are no different?when they have opportunities to think and talk about their reading, they explode with thoughts, questions, and ideas. The Read, Write, and Talk practice provides a framework for reading, merging thinking with the information, recording thoughts, and talking about what has been read. This lively video lets you join Stephanie Harvey and Anne Goudvis, authors of Strategies That Work, in an intermediate-grade reading workshop where students engage in real-world literacy. In this classroom, kids use comprehension strategies to better understand what they read. They grapple with issues, information and ideas that provoke thinking and spur lively conversation. The goal of Read, Write, and Talk is to give kids a chance to talk purposefully about their reading. As information is shared with others, thinking evolves and comprehension deepens. Read, Write, and Talk is an on-going practice, not a stand-alone lesson. Once students have learned this process, it is used across the curriculum and throughout the year, with science and social studies reading, literature study, and even with textbooks.

It is an authentic process that replicates what "real" readers do, and supports and encourages kids to ask more questions, ponder information, and better understand what they read. In the video Steph models a complete Read, Write, and Talk lesson including: teacher modeling: Steph models her own thinking with a short article on a current topic of interest, stopping to jot down her inner conversation, questions, connections, new learning, and other observations; guided practice and discussion: During the shared reading, Steph asks kids to jot down their thinking and turn and talk to each other about information in the text. As kids share their thinking, Steph guides the discussion towards an understanding of bigger issues, ideas, and questions raised by the article; independent practice: After kids have practiced the process, Steph invites them to choose from among three articles to try this on their own. They read the article, record their thinking, and talk about what they read; sharing: The kids come together to share their responses, including new learning, big ideas, and lingering questions. They also discuss how the process of working and thinking together adds to their understanding. end-of-tape debrief: A conversation among colleagues about the Read, Write, and Talk practice and how it supports thinking and learning.

Does your learner need help with reading comprehension? Visualization skills are vital for fast and efficient comprehension. Visualization Skills for Reading Comprehension builds this key skill quickly and efficiently. Visualizing is the ability to create mental pictures in our heads based on the text we read or the words we hear. It is one of the key skills required for reading comprehension. Students who visualize as they read not only have a richer reading experience but can recall what they have read for longer periods of time. Moreover, having a strong mental image of a text allows students to more accurately and effectively answer Higher Order Thinking (HOT) questions, such as inferencing, prediction, etc. If your learner struggles with reading comprehension, working on visualization skills should be high on your list of priorities. Visualization Skills for Reading Comprehension provides step-by-step activities to quickly build the ability to visualize information while reading.
